Special Despatch to Tan Sun. Special Despatch to THE SUX.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 19—After a two weeks layoff following the oberwhelming success over Ursinus, the Rutgers eleven finally got into action on Nelson Field this afternoon and was handed a surprise. While Foster Sanford's combination of stars defeated the Pelham Bay Navas Training station eleven, it had a hard time recording the victory, for Rutgers was able to get only one touchdown. The score was 7 to 0.

After it was all over the Rutgers players were willing to admit that the Pelham team was at least as strong as that which represented the Newport station last year and which Rutgers beat by 12 to 0.

The Rutgers and Pelham teams were quite evenly matched, and the sailors played a far stronger game than had been expected. Frankly, Rutgers looked for an easy success, but from the very start it was apparent that the sailors had a great combination and could give any eleven in the country a battle.

Weber, the old Colgate player, was on the field for Pelham, and the way he ran and amashed was a caution. There was no stopping him, and it was mainly because of his operations that Pelham was able to keep the Scarlet back at several stages. For Rutgers the brightest lights were Baker and Neuschaeffer.

Special Despatch to THE SUN

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 19.—Penn State's football game with Bucknell to-day was called off upon receipt of a last minute order from the State health authorities despite assurances from the stages. For Rutgers the brightest lights were Baker and Neuschaeffer.

It was not until the last four minutes that Rutgers got its touchfown. Petham Bay had worked its way down into Rutger's territory and it looked mighty bad for the Scarlet. Then a forward pass was tried and it was intercepted by Neuschaeffer. That gave Rutgers new life and it started its own march for the sailor's goal line.

The march was begun with a forward pass to Robeson for thirty-five yards and the ball was placed on Pelham's 20-yard line. Here Baker, who had been out since the second period, in which he was injured, came back into the game. Summerhill started a series of line plunges which finally placed the ball on the tars' five-yard mark.

A forward pass formation was called for and while the sailors were looking for the toss, Baker made it a play all his own and crossed for the touchdown.

The Sailors roughed Summerhill in the next period. Then they held Rutgers for downs. In the second period a pass for Robeson did not go far shough to the aide, with the result that the ball on the scrube' 2 yard line, cost the first team a touchdown.
